—More swift than lightning can I fly
About this sly walkin' song,
And in a minx's space deservy
Each thing's done below the moon.
There's not a lag
Or ghost shall wag,
Or cry—"Were gookin'?" where I go,
But Robin!
Their fates will spye
And them who home with hol' ho! ho!
Whom's er' who wanders I mete,
From their eight-tops they trudge home;
With counterfeiting voices I greet
And tell them on with no to come
Through woads, through lakes,
Through bogges, through brakes;
Or else, unsee, with them I go,
All in the niche,
To play some tricke,
And frolics it with hol' ho! ho!
Sometimes I meet them like a man;
Sometimes an ox, sometimes a hound;
And to a horse I turn me can,
To trip and trud about them rounds;
But if ride,
By backs to wride,
More swift than wind away I go,
O'er hedge and haile,
Through ponds and ponds,
I whirly, laughing hol' ho! ho!
When lads and lasses merry be,
With possets and rich juncates fine,
Unseen of all the company
I eat their eakes, and sip their wine.
And to make sport
I pull them down,
And out the mida I do blow;
The maid's I kiss;
They shriek—whoo's that?
I answer nought but hol' ho! ho!
Yet now and then the maid please,
At midnight I card up their wools;
And while they sleep, and take their ease,
With wheel to spin, there was I pull.
And still—
Their mat up still,
I drew their hempe, and spin their tow;
Any walk,
And would me talk,
I send me, laughing hol' ho! ho!
When men do traps and engins set,
In loatholes where the vermin concep;
Who from the fields and houses get
Their docks, and green, and lambes and sheep;
I spy the gin,
And enter in,
And acomme a vermine taken so
But when they there
Approach me neare,
I leap out, laughing hol' ho! ho!"

Bank of Pennsylvania, Feb. 21, 1829.

By a resolution of the Board of Directors, which passed unanimously that day, I am required to transmit to you the Senate the communication of a committee on this bank, which has been approved and adopted by the Board. With great respect, I am, sir,

Your obedient servant,
JOHN P. NORRIS, P. B. P.

Hon. DANIEL STURGEON,
Speaker of the Senate.

Bank of Pennsylvania, Feb. 21, 1829.

At a Meeting of the Board of Directors of this Bank, held this day, the following report was approved and adopted; and it was resolved, that two copies of said report be made, and that the President be requested to transmit a copy to the Speaker of each branch of the Legislature.

Attest,
JOHN P. NORRIS, P. B. P.

Bank of Pennsylvania, Dec. 24, 1828.

The committee, appointed on the 24th of December last, "to meet the committee appointed by the Legislature to examine into the state of the bank, and to furnish them with such explanations and information as they shall judge proper," respectfully reports:

REPORT:
That they attended to the duties of their appointment, the execution of which will be best exhibited by a condensed statement of the occurrences which took place.

On the day of their appointment, your committee addressed a note to the committee of the Legislature, (in reply to theirs of the same date, to the President and Directors) which, with the correspondence that ensued, is as follows:

The committee appointed to receive and confer with the committee from the Legislature, for the examination of the affairs of this institution, will be pleased to commence the business at the banking-house at 11 o'clock, on Friday morning, or at any other time which may be more agreeable to the gentlemen from the Legislature.

Very respectfully yours,
WILLIAM SANSON, Chairman.

J. R. BURDEN, Esq. Chairman.

Hicks' Hotel, Dec. 25, 1828.

The Committee of the Legislature acknowledge the receipt of your communication of yesterday, and will now advise you of the time when they will be prepared to meet the committee of the Legislature, to examine into the state of the bank, and to furnish them with such explanations and information as they shall judge proper," respectfully yours,

WILLIAM SANSON, Chairman.

Secretary of Joint Committee.

WILLIAM SANSON, Esq. Chairman.

Committee of Bank Pennsylvania.

Bank of Pennsylvania, Dec. 27, 1828.

Agreeably to the request in Mr. Simpson's note of the 26th inst., I now enclose a copy of the resolution of the Directors of this bank, appointing a committee to meet the delegation from the Legislature. And I am requested to inform you that the committee, with the officers of the bank, are desirous to give the most ample information. Very respectfully yours,

H. SIMPSON,
Secretary of Joint Committee.

Hicks' Hotel, Dec. 28, 1828.

The Committee appointed by the Legislature to examine into the affairs of the Bank of Pennsylvania and Philadelphia, have, heretofore, made a report to you of the result of their examination. The bank shall be allowed the privilege of offering any testimony they may think necessary, to show that the affairs of said bank have been properly conducted; and the opportunity will be given for one of the clerks in the bank to take copies of the questions, which had been previously proposed to witnesses. By this communication your committee were not apprised of any precise views which the committee of the Legislature had taken, or to the evidence they had collected, nor of the impressions which had been made by it on their minds, so as to be a guide to your committee, in the exercise of the privilege imparted to them, in making any statements or defence, and of examining witnesses in their behalf. They, therefore, addressed the following note, to which they received the subjoined reply:

Bank of Pennsylvania, Dec. 10, 1828.

"On motion, Mr. Burden, Mr. Hawkins, and Mr. Wise, were appointed a committee to join a committee of the House of Representatives, (if that House should appoint such committee,) to examine into the state of the Bank of Pennsylvania, and report the result of their examination on or before the third Monday in January next.

Extract from the Journal."

"In the House of Representatives, Dec. 17, 1828.
On motion, resolved, that Messrs. Simpson, Wilkins, Weidman, and Commissaries be a Committee, in conjunction with a committee from the Senate, already appointed, to examine into the state of the Bank of Pennsylvania and the Philadelphia Bank."

Extract from the Journal."

The authority given by these resolutions, and the object of the Legislature, in the appointment of the committee, appeared to your committee to be clear and explicit; and they conceived that it was within the scope of their own appointment to give all the explanation and information which could be required in relation to the state of the bank.

Their committee think it proper here to state, that they did not know, nor was it communicated to them by the committee of the Legislature, that public opinion had been excited against the bank, or that the belief was general, that some of the directors and officers had combined with brokers and others to take the loan to the injury of the bank and of the government,—nor that an impression existed that mismanagement of the institution in stock operations had so diminished its means, that it possessed little capital for banking business. It was, therefore, matter of surprise to your committee that in relation to these topics, which were but indistinctly developed in the progress of the examination of witnesses, the committee of the Legislature were subjecting the bank to a rigid scrutiny. If your committee had been distinctly informed that an investigation of this character was intended, and had the power of inquiry been specifically stated, they do not hesitate to say, that they should have promptly met and refused the charges.

As it was, the inquiry, as it was prosecuted, did not afford your committee the opportunity of establishing that the loan was taken under the authority and with the approbation and sanction of the Board of Directors. That the method adopted for taking it was not only the most judicious, but probably the only mode in which it could have been taken with equal advantage to the state: that the object of the bank, to afford facility to the financial operations of the government, so far as could be done consistently with the interests of the institution, was fully effected by the mode adopted for taking the loan: And that the means of the bank for its business, instead of having been diminished by its participation in this loan, were increased. The committee cannot, therefore, entertain a doubt, that when the evidence which was taken shall be placed before the Legislature, it will be seen that the directors of the bank, and its officers, are not obnoxious to any charge of combination with others to take the loan to the loss or injury of the government; and that the imputation of mismanagement of the institution, in stock operations, is without foundation.

In relation to the state of the bank, or its actual condition, which your committee supposed would be the object of inquiry, every kind of information which was required was freely given; and it is a matter of peculiar satisfaction, that they had it in their power to meet the investigation on this point, not only in the most complete, but in the most satisfactory manner. The statement of the concerns of the institution, carefully scrutinized, and its accuracy tested, must have satisfied the gentlemen from the Legislature, not only of the safety, but of the prosperity of the bank.

To such a statement as this, and so verified,
